

- Sovereign bond yields extended their declines following soft economic data which supported market expectations of interest rate cuts next year. US private non-farm payrolls increased 103,000 last month (vs 130k expected), and German factory orders unexpectedly fell 3.7% m/m in October following an upwardly revised 0.7% rise in September.
- In this context, US 10Y treasury yields hit new three-month lows and the 10Y German yield fell to levels not seen since May of this year. Stock markets were mixed, rising in the euro area and edging lower in the US. Asian stocks slightly recovered during the day but are still lower in the week following Moody's negative outlook review of Chinese debt.
- In commodities markets, oil prices fell to their lowest level since July as rising gasoline inventories in the US increased worries about slowing global demand. European natural gas prices continue to trade below €40 Mw/H. The dollar strengthened while the euro weakened to levels below $1.08.
