

- Financial markets ended the week on a slightly positive note. News from early in the week of US-China trade negotiations helped sustain sentiment in equity markets, despite survey data showing a sharp deterioration in US consumer sentiment and an uptick in inflation expectations.
- In this context, Euro area stock markets advanced, with the Ibex-35 leading the gains, while the main US equity indices closed higher recording weekly gains of over 5%. Sovereign bond markets were mixed. Eurozone yields edged lower on the back of dovish remarks from ECB officials, while Treasury yields rose on inflation concerns from sentiment surveys.
- In currency markets, the dollar was mostly flat. And in commodities, Brent crude prices rose as fears of a slowdown in global demand eased as US-China talks advanced. This week will see no major economic releases beyond preliminary PMI data for the eurozone and the US.
